Programme Report

Report on “Bag Making Workshop” Organized by the Department of Home Economics

The Department of Home Economics successfully organized a “Bag Making Workshop” for the students on 12th November 2022. The workshop was specially conducted for the B.A. First Semester girl students with the objective of providing them practical exposure, enhancing their creative abilities, and equipping them with the latest knowledge and skills related to bag design and construction.

The resource person for the workshop was Dr. Rekha Zoting, an expert in the field, who conducted the session with great enthusiasm and professionalism.

During the workshop, she demonstrated and taught three different bag designs, focusing on both aesthetic appeal and functional utility. She also explained the process of making a basic bag using simple and easy techniques, enabling the students to further experiment and create variations based on their own creativity and preferences.

A total of 20 students actively participated and benefitted from this hands-on learning experience. The workshop not only enhanced their technical skills but also boosted their confidence in designing and creating useful articles independently. The Honorable Principal, Dr. Milind Barhate, appreciated the efforts of the students and commended the Department for organizing such a practical and skill-oriented workshop. He also congratulated Dr. Rekha Zoting for successfully conducting an informative and valuable session.

The students expressed great satisfaction as they gained new skills and practical knowledge through this workshop. Such activities reflect the continuous efforts of the department to promote skill-based learning.

The workshop was coordinated under the guidance of Prof. Prerana Ratnaparkhi, Head of the Department of Home Economics, who consistently encourages the inclusion of innovative and practical activities within the curriculum for the holistic development of students.
